

Project Dark Lemon

Posted by Neboboy - 2011/11/13 12:00

Ok so I think its time to throw up the project thread,

So bought the car very cheap as the paint work is horrific, but it still had 1 months NCT on it , its an automatic , standard interiors with a fwe extra icey bits , I have a savage TRD bumper for it and skirts and rear spats, Im going to get a set of Black Rota Rims for it and maybe the blackend rear lights and a set of lazy eyes for the front ,

The interior I want to get black and Yellow alcantara , and get the dash done in alcantara aswell black with yellow stitching,

Heres some of the pics of the car now , http://www.mr2.ie/images/fbfiles/images/mr2_bonnet_up.jpg

Was hoping to see a tanned lesbian but this is interesting too. It's nice to see that some plonkers idea of a cool paint job hasn't seen the car to the scrap heap. It's a great thing that someone with skill, patience and determination has come along to the rescue. I wish you well with the project and hope it turns out great for ya. Keep us posted. :)

Re: Project Dark Lemon

Posted by Néboboy - 2011/11/14 23:29

thanks man appreciate that , yeah I seen past the paint job to a truly nice little car, all it needed was a good owner to give it the care and attention it needed , after all it did have an NCT on it when i got it so its mechanically sound , just some good old TLC and patience and time will get her back to show condition , cant wait to get her started this weekend itl be like xmas in the garage loads of 2nd hand parts on their way to me this weekend hopefully, new SD card for my camera is ready to go and all my tools are back in their boxes ready for this project, got my electric sander back last week aswell so everything in place for what is going to be the first project ive done start to finish myself in about 5 years,

Re: Project Dark Lemon

Posted by SteveH - 2011/11/16 01:05

I know yours is the auto model, but that engine cover completely destroys the cooling properties of the engine bay in the MR2.

Not sure if you know, but what happens is the air comes up over the windscreen, the roof and then creates a mini vortex behind the rear window, above the engine bay. This sucks the hot air out of the bay. Using that cover negates that from happening and your bay temps will sky rocket.

Does look nice though!

Yeah they look like the winglets from Tom's Side skirts, if so that part goes at the front end of the skirts. Here is a pic of how they are fitted...

http://www.xxxbodykits.com.au/kitpics/90-95%20mr2/toms_8.jpg

So that bit with your hand on touches the fender and the part with the lip tucks underneath the actual skirt.

I looked at the option of bucket seats also ... Bad news however ... They won't fit correctly they will sit higher off the floor and the width in the shoulders will be 2 wide ...

I had a set of Tenzo R seats and they fit but just far 2 tight ... Look at the size of the original seats and put them beside the bucket seats and you will see what i mean i was onto cobra about seats for the mr2 as they were the only company i came across with a sub frame that was for the sw20 but said that only 1 seat would it and it was the rigid clubman seat ... so i went for the option of recovering my seats ... And that worked out bad ...

I have ordered a set of replacement covers from a guy in the uk that came highly recommended ... they cost 280 ish euro and the guy will do custom colors etc ... I should receive them this week ...

They come with 2 replacement covers for the seats .. The door cards ... the gear stick gator ... the hand break one and center box covers hope they are as good as i am told

Those seats are the same height as the original MR2s from what the measuring tape told me anyway ,

Il find out on Thursday when I take the old seat out but they look around the same and they are a bit tighter than the originals and they have rails on them just need to get the brackets welded up properly ,

Re: Project Dark Lemon

The seats I got where turning out to be more hassle than they where worth so I swapped a buy the seats for a nice set if genuine 2 piece split rim Lightweight Lenzos , I checked these online before I swapped and they are an expensive rim even without tires , Also he gave me his brothers number for interiors which is sound , they where in a shed lying up so had some tidying to do on them , heres the before pic http://www.mr2.ie/images/fbfiles/images/IMG_0179.JPG

Thats a really cheap quote ... Make them stick to that if you want to try it yourself the materials can be ordered off mdp supplies for 122 GBP and you will need 15 mtrs of 1524 cast vinyl ... All the tools you will need is a heat gun, a scalpel and a tub of degreaser for the panels ... If you key the panels with a gray scotch pad before hand the vinyl will stick better ... Its best to do all the panels off and then assemble after Dont heat and stretch the vinyl 2 much as the color will distort ... you would save yourself a fortune doing it yourself ... Be very careful where you put your joints If you want to come down and have a look at mine your welcome to 600 that all sure the wheel kit and seats alone are probably worth that,

all i wanted was teh seats and door cards but there goes that idea, ah well itl do well for me for parts,

Im getting the following

Bonnet

Headlight covers

Tail Lights

Rear Bumper

and the air intake (Gona leave it black to go with the yellow black look i want,)

I also think I might il have a look at it when i get down there and see what might be salvageable off it,

I also have a question lads, how much are the door bumper strips the black ones that run down the middle of the door and also over the front wings and also attach the rear bumper , are they expensive to buy from Toyota , I want to buy brand new black ones to break up the paint work a but and give it that cool fresh factory look www.toyotaparts.ie are pretty good. They will get parts for Irish domestic or Japanese domestic models. Just need to give them your chassis number. I've bought a few things from them before.

Another option would be to get the parts from Joe the MR2 breaker over in Tuam, although they might be a little weathered or need cleaning up. Those strips are pretty resilient though.

Hi all

I would aslo strongly recomend Joe in Tuam, I was there with the car and apart of the stuff I went for I got whole lot of little bits that helped me get the car back to 100% i.e missing bolts, cracked plastics, cig lighter, wents.

has them all, rev123, turbo and non-turbo,and celicas gt4

Ok so I was looking at the door that I got down to the bare metal and I am thinking I do not need to put a layer of filler on the car, I forgot its not being sprayed its being wrapped so all I have to do is just make sure its flat and has no MAJOR bumps or dents, so Im going to just spray the door down with the spray putty give it a good 3 coats and it should be fine then , so I dont need to go over it with layers of filler , so heres the updates for tonight , got the door sanded and the first layer of skim I had to sand down and then ran out of sand paper http://www.mr2.ie/images/fbfiles/images/IMG_0284.JPG

IM SOOO FING ANNOYED RIGHT NOW ,
3 webistes ive ogne onto that I googled for MR2 and they show up MR2 parts but yet when you select the year and make of car there is no mr2,

This happened 5 times for parts on Ebay and on a few other american sites that had custom parts but I could not order them as there was no MR2

Pratts!

If you're ordering from the USA, this is the dealer who is very good:
<http://www.lithiatoyotaparts.com/partlocator/index.cfm?siteid=215542>

The parts manager is an MR2 fanatic (helps) although be cautious with the USA as they had different engine models (5sfe vs our 3sge) and also what we call a 1992 reg can be a 1993 or 1994 over there.

They do stock parts for MR2, but the MK2 wasn't sold in the US after 1993/4 so they wont have it listed in 1996. If the part you are looking for was common between the revs then you could put in an earlier year.

the little black piece that bolts the bumper to the wing , little black strip it runs from the front bumper along the door and bolts the rear bumper on

Re: Project Dark Lemon

I have one of them, but it has a couple of broken bolts in it that would need to be drilled out.

I took my bumper off the other day and the same thing happened 3-4 of the bolts snapped in the black bar.

You can have it for free if you want it, as I got the bumper off Spidey here for free.

I am in Dublin today if you want me to drop it to you, PM'd you my number.

Spent the whole evening with teh car and forgot my camera I left it in my mams house, but I got the paint stripped off the roof and got started on the left hand side of the car, used paint remover and a scraper as it seems easier and causes less scratching to the metal underneath , learning as I go , tomorrow il take the pics of what I have done so far, but its coming together slowly , at the end of next week im dropping the bonnet and a few other bits up to sign express to get wrapped so il see what the yellow looks like by next week , gona drop up the bonnet the rear window surround and maybe the boot with the spoiled and then just put em upstairs in the garage til they are ready to go on ,

In regards to your indicators, maybe its just the photos but you seem to have them pushed too far in on one side which may explain your difficulty in getting them to fit.

Have a look at these ones for comparison

Picked up the new seats yesterday in Wexford , spent 150 quid in halfords today on rovet gun bolts more rivets , putty spray , got some more primer and a few other bits and bobs I needed, also got the paint for the door handles and the rear intake,

Other side done aswell , but trickier as the kit has a bit of warp in it that I had to heat up and twist into shape also put the old lights in and the center piece just line everything up

Great job man, it's fair coming on now!
May I suggest using photobucket.com for hosting the images of your progress.
I was looking back through your thread and a lot of the older images seem to have gone missing.

Really impressive work. You must get a great sense of satisfaction with it coming together. I can imagine the excitement when the primer goes on and she's all one colour too..

here's a karma click for you!!

Hi everyone sorry been away awhile was very sick had an operation aswell , but im back up and back to work , have the car all sanded back and sprayed with the putty spray , I just need a link off somone to buy the rolls of Vinayl wrap for the car gona do it myself as I tried it on a mates wings on his car and they came out savage , heat gun and a lot of patience and it can be done ,

SO if anyone has a link or osmone they know where I can buy the wrap myself id appreciate it ,

The car has also had a full service done , new pads new oil new filter , new plugs , changed gearbox oil and power steering fluid the lot, Iso while I was at it i replaced all the main fuses in her at a cost of 165 euro didnt realise them things where so bloody expensive , but running like a champe now , just have to get down to the nitty gritty now of just finishing off the front bumper and getting her wrapped,

Again apologies for the basence lads was very ill
