

JIC Magic coilovers £100

Posted by cs1980 - 2013/09/20 09:01

Forgot i had these coilovers, complete with spherical top mounts.

JIC Magic, one of the more higher end brands. Not cheap rubbish you see people buying these days. You wouldn't buy a set of these new for under a grand.

I already have a set of TRD ones to fit so no point in holding onto these.

I only have the REAR coilovers, there are no fronts. Hence price of £100, still cheap replacement rear suspension if nothing else! Spherical top mounts aren't cheap either, and an Mk2 MR2 is a car that could definitely do with them!

Nice clean condition coilovers. I can post these anywhere in the UK for a tenner. Would need to look into postage prices for down south.

would having different suspension front and back mess with the handling? Have ohlins on it atm but think the back two are on the way out. Cheers

To be honest mate, i would be the person to ask as i don't know. Perhaps if you put a topic up on here or any other MR2 forum with the question, you may get the correct answer.

Someone asked me if the price for these included postage for down south. It doesn't, but i can send by courier for £25.

Still have these lying in my hallway, found a pair of C spanners as well which can go with them. Sick of parts lying about the house. :silly:

Hi. Have you still got these rear coilovers? I would like to buy them. Thanks.

Sorry for the late reply, i've been without internet for a while.

Yeah i still have the coilovers sitting here. :)

Still have these, someone asked me to get the centres of the holes of the spherical top mounts, so i thought it best to draw an expert diagram.

I have absolutely no idea why these are still here, a pair of rear pillowball mounts cost £100+ easily on their own, nevermind the coilovers. :dry:
