

Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by b4ss - 2015/01/12 12:19

---

As the title says, it seems impossible to get insurance atm, unless u have had an existing policy for ages.

Tony

---

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by Crmr2 - 2015/01/12 14:51

---

Are you talking about having it as an everyday driver or Classic?

B) :)

---

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by b4ss - 2015/01/12 14:54

---

Ah yea have the script for 250euro as second car - yea was just trying to suss out daily driver first..

T

---

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by Crmr2 - 2015/01/12 14:59

---

I am trying to sort out classic insurance for my turbo. I will try champion, they already gave classic on my N/A last year. I intend putting my 97 turbo on the road.

B)

---

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by Quandry - 2015/01/13 09:26

---

I am insured with Axa. If they are no use then I'd say give Champion a call. BTW, you could also put in an enquiry to the insurance ombudsman. The insurance industry is regulated and my understanding is that they should not be just flat turning you down.

---

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by b4ss - 2015/01/13 10:29

---

yea AXA came up cool :)
thanks
T

=====

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by Crmr2 - 2015/01/14 09:58

---

I rang Campion, The car needs to be older than 20 years now, due to them having changed insurance companies.

:(

=====

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by Quandry - 2015/01/14 12:24

---

b4ss wrote:
yea AXA came up cool :)
thanks
T

great!

=====

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by slipsliderg - 2015/01/14 13:53

---

Crmr2 wrote:
I rang Campion, The car needs to be older than 20 years now, due to them having changed insurance companies.

:(

They covered my 1995 N/A but I am with them for years now.

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by skybound - 2015/01/14 19:58

---

Jap import turbo '90 - classic insurance with Campbell Autoline, full comp €240 ish B)

=====

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by Crrmr2 - 2015/01/15 00:00

---

Tried Carole and Nash, They will not touch Jap.

Tried AXA they won't anything younger than 25.

First Ireland and Brophy's 20 years.

:(

:damn:

The struggle goes on.

@ Ray, Existing costumers for campion are ok!, I left my policy lapse.

=====

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by Crrmr2 - 2015/01/16 11:58

---

Just off the phone with Wendy of Autoline Campbell,

Classic policy with comprhensive cover, €388.

97 Turbo.

:) :fatcat: :yes: :yes:

DELIGHTED!!

Forgive the shouting!

=====

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by b4ss - 2015/01/16 12:01

---

Ohhh that seems to have gone up, thought it was only 250, i might have a bad recollection of the price though :(
T

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by skybound - 2015/01/16 12:25

Congrats CRMR2 ;)
Seems a bit higher in price though than what others have been quoted, hopefully there are no increase renewal hikes coming..

Might be down to the car value being covered being fully comp ?

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by Mister2 - 2015/01/16 13:03

that's not bad, they can not offer the normal price of €240 as the car is not yet 20 years old, I had the same issue a few years ago on another car, Champion Insurance covered it on the limited mileage policy, but it was about €120 more expensive as it could not yet be classed as vintage

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by Crmr2 - 2015/01/16 14:00

It was €350 (excluding €25 for IVETA) 2 years ago with champion. I would be thinking it is the young age of the car. Champion are offering €250 for a car older than 20 years.

;)

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by skybound - 2015/01/16 14:46

Makes sense.. :)

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by Quandry - 2015/02/13 16:48

---

Hey folks, just wanted to chip in some latest info on this thread. I am looking at moving my 2 over to classic insurance in a couple of months.

As posted above Axa will only classic insure cars over 25 years old so I will be kissing them goodbye.

To look at alternatives I rang First Ireland and they were extremely helpful. They will insure 20 year old cars as classic at €230 for the year assuming you have a seperate daily driver. That's also a fully comp policy with windscreen and stepback insurance etc. Previously a distant dream for classic?

When I spoke to Axa they were practically trying to throw the business away, First Ireland though were very keen to win the business. So if you are looking for a quote give them a try. I spoke to Dervilla on 01 882 0826, if you call her say that you were sent by the MR2 Drivers club, she said they knock a little bit more off coming through a car club.

One thing to note First Ireland will only insure over 30's on MR2's

---

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by liammoo - 2015/02/23 10:43

---

Hey all,

I just got my renewal from Champion for my 1995 MR2 N/A and its 330 plus 25 for IVETA. I'm a little disappointed because using my maths the car is now 20 yrs old and I was expecting a 100 euro drop in price :(

Someone mentioned that they've changed their underwriter so maybe that explains the change. Note that that's for very basic Third Party (no fire/theft or other frills).

Thanks,

Liam

---

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by liammoo - 2015/03/05 14:16

---

Just a quick update - got a call from a decent fella in Campions who said that they had sent out the wrong amount it was reduced to what I had been expecting. All signed up for another year!! Just have to pay for the 3rd piece of paper and then I'm ready to go :)

---

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by Mister2 - 2015/03/05 16:24

---

I was with Champion a few years ago, and from what dealings I had with them, all the policies that they offered me were 3rd party. Autoline offered fully comp for the same price so that's why I changed ... 240 I paid last year I think, I have not got my renewal for this year yet.

Although I suspect that they way that euro is gone to sh1t against GBP .. there will probably be an increase

=====

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by slipsliderg - 2015/03/05 21:30

---

liammoo wrote:

Just a quick update - got a call from a decent fella in Campions who said that they had sent out the wrong amount it was reduced to what I had been expecting. All signed up for another year!! Just have to pay for the 3rd piece of paper and then I'm ready to go :)

Good to hear Liam, I have the triple on the windscreen from today as well. We shall have to go for a spin soon.

=====

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by Quandry - 2015/03/06 09:09

---

liammoo wrote:

Just a quick update - got a call from a decent fella in Campions who said that they had sent out the wrong amount it was reduced to what I had been expecting. All signed up for another year!! Just have to pay for the 3rd piece of paper and then I'm ready to go :)

Result - Huzzah!

=====

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by Bommie - 2015/03/06 09:16

---

so lads, just a quick question, are Campions/First Ireland the way to go?

94 rev 3 turbo, will be insuring it as a 2nd policy as a classic hopefully.

Also, where do you pay the IVETA? I'm already a member of a classic car club for a couple of years, but i presume i must sign up for something else?

Any info is appreciated :)

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by Luksander - 2015/03/06 14:06

---

Hi Bommie,

Did you try AXA?

<http://www.axa.ie/car-insurance/classic-car/>

Another good thing they have in regular car insurance is comprehensive cover for driving others cars those are not in your own name. if you know what I mean?

=====

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by Bommie - 2015/03/06 14:33

---

Luksander wrote:

Hi Bommie,

Did you try AXA?

<http://www.axa.ie/car-insurance/classic-car/>

Another good thing they have in regular car insurance is comprehensive cover for driving others cars those are not in your own name. if you know what I mean?

Hi Luksander..i know you are not telling me to sign my car into someone elses name and then drive it on my own insurance! ;)

I currently have open drive for vehicles not in my own name on my existing policy...hypothetically, could i sign the mr2 into my fiance's name and drive it on my 3rd party extension..she has a company car so currently has no car registered in her name...

This is purely curiosity by the way! :laugh:

I'm planning on insuring it as a classic on a seperate policy to my daily driver, but i think this is how a lot of young lads seem to be driving cars they couldn't get insurance on normally! if the classic policy comes in at under €300 i will have no problem paying it as i'd like to keep things above board when it comes to insurance :)

=====

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by bluetubby123 - 2015/03/06 17:49

---

thats how i work my 2 ,only have her on the road for 6 months at the most so i have fully comp on my other car with 123 that covers any other car so i signed the 2 over to the missus ;)

=====

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by Quandry - 2015/03/06 18:09

Axa told me my '92 is not old enough for Classic. They have a cutoff point for younger than 25 years. First Ireland is cutoff for younger than 20 years.

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by Bommie - 2015/03/07 01:18

the plot thickens! :laugh:

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by MR2guydublin - 2015/04/24 17:21

hey all im having a lot of difficulty even getting a quote, full license and 15 years licence , 3-4 years no claims, no penalty points etc. mr2 turbo , been told no one will quote me , also can I get a quote up north re. my mr2 , irish reg or how does this work ? any advice appreciated ,my mr2 turbo is 93' reg. I got a quote from quote devikl for 1550 euro ! ouch :ohmy:

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by MR2guydublin - 2015/04/24 17:30

hi can you tell me even if I live in Dublin can I still get this insurance up north ? i.e my address is in Dublin , thanks.

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by Bommie - 2015/06/03 15:36

Hi lads, What number are people ringing for Campbell Autoline? Are they the crowd based in the North? Do the insure Rep of Ireland as well? :blink:

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by Bommie - 2015/06/03 16:19

---

Quick update lads, got through to Jenny in Campion insurance and she quoted me the following:

3rd Party only - €220
3rd Party, Fire & Theft - €260

5,000 mile per year limit
Open drive for people with full license and between ages of 25 - 71

Delighted with that! B)

=====

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by b4ss - 2015/06/03 16:20

---

I just dropped an email to Wendy and sorted it all out, you will need your mr2.ie membership number and current mileage.

Wendy. <http://www.autoline.co.uk/Contact-Us/Coleraine>

T

=====

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by Quandry - 2015/06/03 17:30

---

If anyone needs their MR2 club membership number just email me admin (at) mr2.ie and I will send you on the details.

Good work B4SS !

=====

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by MR2guydublin - 2015/06/04 12:54

---

Thanks for he help guys , one more question, is this with or with out another insurance policy i.e another day runner car is insured, as I got a quote for 1800 euro ouch !

=====

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by Bommie - 2015/06/04 13:55

---

MR2guydublin wrote:

Thanks for he help guys , one more question, is this with or with out another insurance policy i.e another day runner car is insured, as I got a quote for 1800 euro ouch !

This is with another car as your daily.

I have 02 a4 tdi insured with 123.ie for €390 & looking at approx €260 for the Mr2 so all comes in at roughly €650 which i'm quite happy with!

i'm 29, nine years full licence & 9 years no claims...waiting for a letter in the door any day now telling me my 2 penalty points are gone :)

=====

Re: Jap import Turbos - who have u insurance with?

Posted by MR2guydublin - 2015/06/04 16:10

---

thanks for the reply man !!! and best of luck with your MR2 champ !

=====