

Door parts needed urgently

Posted by AlersClarke - 2015/05/19 22:41

Hi All, I got my car back this evening from a new mechanic and the two door handles (the bit you put your fingers into to pull the door closed) and the the door pull handle surrounds are all broken and glued back together. You can imagine how upset I am over this. He was supposed to be replacing the drivers window regulator and he has give me the car back in a terrible state.(I dont know what he was at with he passenger side) The window now has a gap at the top where it has not been fitted properly. Its so bad that I dont want to give the car back to him in case he makes it worse. As well as that the clock is not set properly all the radio channels are tuned out. I'm worried what i will find next. Does anyone have these parts of trim and does anyone know a decent mechanic who will be able to sort this issue with the regulator. Very dismayed here, Cheers all

Hey Alers ...sorry to hear about yer woes

The plastic trim around the inside door handle are hard to come by second hand that are not already damaged, as if they are not taken off correctly .. they normally break. Here's a link to new ones if you can not get some second hand ones :

the other part ... door pull cup, should be easy enough to get

Hi All, I gave my car into a new mechanic and the upper adjuster bolts and bracket for the window are missing. The last idiot removed them when trying to botch the door. Does anyone have these bolts or a door lying around? I am at my wits end with this. Yer man is no longer answering his phone. Cheers for the help lads
