

Who will insure 89 Mk1 as daily driver ???

Posted by TurboD - 2015/10/30 17:45

Got my 89 mk1 out of storage and I've decided to drive it as my daily driver but the only Insurance company to quote me so far is Axa for €600 . I also rang AA and after a 20 minute phone call answering all the usually annoying questions they said Oh sorry no quotes have come back so 20 minute waste of time . Can anybody advise me of companies that may quote an old car as daily driver ?

Thank`s Jock . Maybe it is a good quote . I am used to paying 400 fully comp on my 2 litre jeep . But I'll check Britton out .

I've had some success with First Ireland. Give them a try: <http://www.firstireland.ie/>

Thank`s Quandry but I've been with them for years and unfortunately they won't cover my mk1 as a daily driver . They will only cover it on classic cover .

I think I will have to go with Axa but they won't insure it until it's Nct'd . It failed nct on emissions because it's been sitting up for a few years so that should be easy fix. The tester said it was like a new car he was very impressed and said it just needs to be driven and bring it back for emissions test . So dipetane or Terraclean what do you guys think ???
