

Cant even get an insurance quote on Mr2...

Posted by richardc9052 - 2012/03/10 11:51

I havnt tried many yet but i dont think there is a point without checking with the people who actually have insured there mr2's :D I cannot get classic insurance or even any kind of policy with limited milage with axa until i am 25.. they wont touch me on the car on a normal policy unless im "30 with 4 years no claims". Liberty (quinn)wouldnt quote me either..

Ive tried tried finding a number for champion & sparrow but they seem to have split into seperate companies..

Anyone know if there is a company that doesnt discriminate against the fact im under 25 for classic insurance?? the car is only going to be used once a week maybe twice for a spin to tesco's or when we go out (if we find a baby sitter :P) not like my other car which i do 1000+ miles per week in..

If you are or have insured an mr2 under the age of 25 please post up who with, how much and a number for them please.. thanks in advance! :D

That's the bugger in this country.

I have the classic policy, but sure I am a classic myself at 38.

Good luck with getting a policy sorted out, plenty of young folk here to help.

I got insured with Quinn at 21 . . it took ages do.... i was trying the online quotes for months and being told i had to ring them that they couldn give me an online quote.... until one day they quoted me €800

(fully comp) was delighted everyone else refused me got the same not till 25 with any1 I rang! So i suggest keep tryin that. but now with Quinn been liberty i dont know wat there like.

Best a luck anywho hope ya get a quote!

Try Alex hes a quinn direct broker. Im 21 and insured for about 1600, 3rd party fire,theft. Its not classic but you could ask him about it. Tell him Max gave ya the number, I got insured there with him about a month ago in my mr2. Alex: 0877666359 Hope this helps.

Call First Ireland - <http://www.firstireland.ie/>

They got me insured years ago when I couldn't get insured anywhere else.

This should help! If you already have a policy with Quinn you can just transfer the car on the policy. I'm 23 and that's how I managed it. However It is important that you tell them that you have ALREADY bought the car because if you just phone looking for a quote they'll say they don't insure that car. They have quoted me on RX8s and FTO GPvRs this way. Was only an extra €50 for me till May (from last week) on top of my original policy on an E46 BMW 318ci. Good luck!

Age: 24
NCD: 1 year (but no claims)
Points: 0
Car: MR2 GTS
Insurer: Quinn/Liberty - 1600, TPFT

They wouldn't insure me on the non-turbo ones though. Make sure you are insuring the right model, because some of the models you will be refused on Re: Cant even get an insurance quote on Mr2...

I was with quinn when i bought my first mr2, told me they didn't insure mr2 but when i told them i had already bought it they transferred my policy (from a 1.5 civic) and only charged about €80 more for about 6 months.

They then sent a renewal and the price was great, cant remember how much now as it was years ago.

The best thing to do would be insure a car for a few weeks, pay by DD then tell them you bought a new car (the mr2), then you just have to hope they don't screw you on the premium increase.

Campbell Autoline in the north insured my 94 for €250 fully comp. I believe Brophys in portlaoise do third party only for €150.

Do a search for Campbell's here I put their number up before.

No l'm in Leinster myself. It's all legit, just need to show them your policy for your daily driver.

Too old !! might depend on whether its daily driver or not.
Been promised reduction next year for when my '90 Turbo Jap Import turns 25 :) - testing description when trying to get quotes :fail: :crybaby:

€285 with Champion, plus €25 vintage membership = €310 gets me on the road but not as daily driver :)

Try Majestic Financial , the guy who owns it Jack Kinane is a sound bloke who is into classic vehicles and said he would try and do a group deal for us months ago but there didn't seem to be enough interest on the site so I never followed it up . His no. Is 018392026 . Its worth a try .

What a load of shit, if the car has a valid NCT then why should it matter what age the car is?

@cozy90 mine was 3rd party maybe thats why it was cheaper, i was with aviva

@tsporter thanks ill try them so, yeah i have insurance on a jeep

@skybound how will they know if ur driving it everyday or not?

@turbod thanks ill try him tomorrow.

@mnixon dont know i didnt even know what to say back to them, its like saying we wont insure your car because it has pop up lights...

Ok lads I dunno wat ye are at how bout getting a shitbox of a car leave it at home put fully comp on it, Then tax and nct your mr2 and bring your insurance cert with you in the mr2 so that if ur stopped by the guards then u have proof that your insured on the mr2 as long as it's taxed and tested (road legal) simples!!!!!!!!!!

Most insurance company's cover cars as long as there nct And taxed just make sure the one u go with does.

In the insurance it says you may drive another vehicle that is not in your own name that is taxed and NCTd as long as you have the owners permission put it in a family members name and wala!!!!!!!!!!

=insured and cheap B)

No insurance on the MR2 then though?

What happens if it robbed/burnt out/electrical fire 911GT3 style?

Even if as simple as someone tried to rob it, and destroyed the locks you would have no lock repair cover provided by some insurers for example.

To me there are two things not to let to chance in a car:

Brakes and Insurance as you have no control over the cost/damage to you if either go wrong.

Ok fair enough but if it's robbed it's robbed u get fuck all anyhow and the fire I guess if that happens with the car the insurance are a pain to get money out of anyhow, well I don't think of them things , I only have it on the road 3months a year and if I crash it it can b fixed or written off I dunno can't say until It happens. Well there is always that option if anyone wants to risk it but that up to themselves.

I thing it still helps if you get something. 2k out of 4 will help you get back on the road.

I was freaking out about turning 30 this year but reading all this doesn't seem that bad anymore (except for advancing baldness) although I did have problem with renewal quote coming at over twice the money than last year but sorted it making new one.

At the moment it sits on 580euro for 96 GTS with 7 years ncb. Car first insured as g-limited few years back and than "mechanic told me" to change it to GTS so now it's genuene.
