

Colour coding my MR2 - opinions

Posted by Rex Banner - 2015/06/23 10:32

Hi folks,

My MR2 is after getting an NCT fail as regards the passenger side sill for rust. Luckily the rust is minor and I know a very good body work expert in my area who will handle the sill repair with ease. Besides I knew this work was going to be required someday.

So long story short. I will have to respray the sills of the car.

While I have this chance I was considering removing the black from the sides and 100% colour coding the car. That would most likely be red front lip, side sills, and rear spats.

Do folks think this would look better or should I keep the REV 1 style black stripe?

The car as it stands - red and black scheme

I probably prefer colour coded myself. But I just wanted to see what other folks thought. While I'm getting the paint mixed up it makes a lot of sense to do all the paint jobs in one go.

Ha thanks for all the responses lads.

The car is in for respraying Monday next and I've opted for the colour coded option.

I'll post pictures of the work in my thread as soon as I get the car back next week. :)
